SOCIAL SKILLS TRAINING & SUPPORT

Students in any college setting face social challenges and demands. These challenges and demands can be especially daunting for those with neurological conditions that affect social skills. The Vocational Independence Program employs a staff of dedicated and experienced counseling professionals that provide individualized social coaching to each student as well as classroom instruction. Generally, students receive support in the form of weekly coaching appointments, mediation sessions and as-needed intervention. Social coaching typically focuses on appropriate socialization, emotional management and setting/pursuing social goals.

The Social Counseling Team:
- Leads the “Dare to Care” Program – an empirically based positive school-wide expectations program known as the “Bears Code”
- Meets with students individually on a weekly basis to discuss program-related issues
- Teaches social communication, relaxation, self-advocacy, goal setting, and relationship skills
- Organizes coffee house nights
- Facilitates the fitness electives as well as the dean’s lecture series and pedometer challenge
- Mediates student issues
- Monitors student’s participation and engagement in social activities
- Supervises student clubs
- Trains residence life staff in active listening skills, and crisis management
- Oversees the Student Ambassadors - a group of students identified as role-models and tasked with assisting the staff during special events
- Refers students to therapists and other health care providers for evaluations, medication reviews, and on-going psychotherapy

VIP SERVING THE SPECIAL NEEDS COMMUNITY SINCE 1987

nyit.edu/vip
The Vocational Independence Program taught me how to live on my own. I learned how to pack my own luggage and travel the world independently with my friends. Currently, I have 2 jobs: working in a school district in food service and at the Disney Store™. Prior to those, I worked for 10 years as a cashier at K.B. Toys.” – TARA COLLINS ’01

“VIP helped me make new friends and live on my own. I have my own apartment in Manhattan. I learned a lot of jobs skills at the Vocational Independence Program. I think VIP is great!” – IAN KNIGHT ’11

“Making new friends was one of the best things that happened to me at VIP. Budgeting was an important skill I learned there that I still use. Today I work at a law firm providing clerical support.” – REBECCA LEWIS ’06

“I work at Hillel at Brown University helping advertise events. VIP gave me the confidence in seeing new places and traveling on my own. I made new friends and I am more independent.” – ROBIN ANCOWITZ ’01

“VIP helped me make new friends, become more independent and develop my work skills. I work for an agency in Westchester that helps others with disabilities. I work in the office.” – EMILY YAN, ’09

“I have worked for the past 15 years in the medical records department of the Burke Rehabilitation Center. VIP helped me with the job interview process; gave me the patience to search for a job and go through the interview; the patience to work everyday year after year; and the computer skills to work in the medical records department. The interactions with others more complex than myself helped me understand others and adapt. I live on my own and I am dating a VIP alumna.” – MICHAEL HAYES ’99

“I liked working in the cafeteria, making friends, and interacting with others. I have been married for 10 years and travel with my wife, Rebecca, all over the world with VIP. I work in the dining hall of a senior citizens center in New Jersey.” – ERIC MARK, ’97

“Currently I work at Modell’s Sporting Goods™ and Bagel Boss™. At VIP, my internship was at Modell’s which easily transferred to a store in my hometown. VIP helped me be a better employee by being on time and giving me the skills I would need for the job, and the social skills I would need to use on the job. It also taught me to problem solve so I can stay employed. At Modell’s™ I am responsible for attaching security devices to all of the items. At Bagel Boss™ I do maintenance. The independent living skills were invaluable. I loved learning the travel training skills. I am waiting patiently to find a home of my own, and I am 100% looking forward to living on my own.” – ADAM SHAPIRO ’13
